Jamie Aziz practices complex litigation in pharmaceutical, products liability, and toxic tort matters. Her responsibilities include, but are not limited to, legal research and writing, analysis of information for depositions and discovery, vetting of expert witnesses, and other tasks relating to the defense of mass tort claims in complex litigation. Jamie's particular strengths include researching and drafting answers to more complicated and unique complaints arising in her cases. With a direct and straight forward approach, she is known to reliably exercise good judgment.

Jamie's experience includes analysis of pharmaceutical industry materials in products liability, regulatory approval, and antitrust investigation matters. She also has experience working with small businesses, drafting contracts, negotiating contract disputes, and drafting settlement agreements. In providing volunteer legal services, she has experience writing appellate briefs in criminal cases before the D.C. Court of Appeals.

Jamie received her J.D., magna cum laude, from Michigan State University College of Law, where she was Associate Editor of the Michigan State Law Review. She was the Founder and a Board Member of the American Constitution Society of MSU. Jamie graduated summa cum laude from Saginaw Valley State University with a B.A. in political science and a B.A. in Spanish.

Jamie finds a reprieve from the rigors of law on her family farm and animal rescue sanctuary.
